INTRO

After graduating from Gonzaga University in 2007, Rachel began her career in the retirement plan consulting industry. While working closely with accountants over the course of five years, she came to realize that the accounting industry could provide her with ample opportunities to grow and thrive as a professional. Fueled by a lifelong passion of learning and enthusiastic about her new professional trajectory, Rachel returned to school to obtain her accounting certificate. She credits this as the best career decision she's ever made. Since the transition, Rachel has been focused on partnership taxation and high-net-worth individuals, particularly within the real estate and long-term care industries. With her unique professional background and breadth of honed analytical skills, Rachel enjoys finding creative and savvy solutions for her clients.
